California Homes Heat Their Water by the Sunshine

Solar Water-Heater Feeds Insulated Tank—Keeps Hot at Night

NINE MONTHS A YEAR

Electric Heater "Cuts in" Automatically During Bad Weather

By SAM JACKSON
AP Feature Service Writer

DAVIS, Calif.—Free sunshine is heating water for thousands of California homes. Skeptics to the contrary, the system works at night as well as in the daytime.

Those who depend on sunshine exclusively for heating water get along comfortably as long as nine months a year without spending a cent, although a succession of cool, cloudy days occasionally may cause postponement of wash day or of one's hot bath.

Many householders, who want a steaming stream from the faucet at all times, have gas or electric heaters or furnace coils working in conjunction with sunshine. On sunny days the sun does the work, and on cloudy ones artificial heat takes its place.

Research Done On It

An exhaustive study of solar heating systems has been made by F. A. Brooks, associate agricultural engineer at the University of California experiment station here.

Tracing the solar heater back to the days when a farmer merely lashed an iron tank on his roof, Professor Brooks has analyzed various methods of getting the most heat out of the sun's rays. As the most practical heater, he selects a zigzag arrangement of iron pipe enclosed in a flat, insulated box with a glass cover and placed on a slanting roof. This is called an "absorber."

"By a process known as thermosiphoning, the heated water flows from the exposed pipes to a storage tank which ordinarily is placed in the attic. Cold water replaces it and is in turn heated and stored, so it supplies hot water through the night until the sun gets to work the next day.

Automatic System Devised

A development by the California engineer is a tandem solar electric heater which is entirely automatic, the electricity going on whenever the sun's rays are too weak to maintain the hot water supply.

"With such a combination," he says, "the housewife will never be bothered by lukewarm water, yet will save heating expense when the sun shines."

Any handyman can build his own solar heater, or one may be purchased ready-made. Professor Brooks warns, however, that beyond sending a booklet of instructions he cannot enter into correspondence with builders regarding their problems.

One solar heater is at the $2,000,000 "castle" of Denton Valley Scotty. His location—scorching Death Valley—is recognized as the hottest region on earth.

The Payoff

An Editorial

Hempstead county's representative, Attorney John Vesey, has introduced in the legislature a bill to pay his law client, N. P. O'Neal, $565 of the taxpayers' money.

The relationship of Mr. O'Neal and Attorney Vesey in the Hempstead county liquor referendum is a matter of public record. Mr. O'Neal placed the prohibitionists' headquarters in Mr. Vesey's law office. After the prohibitionists' defeat Mr. O'Neal retained Mr. Vesey to prosecute the election contest which is still pending.

Now that Mr. Vesey is the county's duly elected representative he introduces in the legislature a bill to pay Mr. O'Neal personally the sum of $565 of public tax funds. Here is the bill:

H. B. NO. 231 (Vesey) Claims A BILL Jan. 26.

FOR AN ACT TO BE ENTITLED: "AN ACT TO COMPENSATE N. P. O'NEAL FOR DAMAGES RECEIVED BECAUSE OF A DEFECTIVE ROAD SIGN ON A STATE HIGHWAY IN WHITE COUNTY, ARKANSAS."

WHEREAS, on the 23rd day of August, 1935, N. P. O'Neal was driving his automobile toward Batesville, Arkansas, and was proceeding along a state highway; and,

WHEREAS, at a turn in the road an employee of the Highway Department had negligently placed a road sign indicating a curve in the road to the left when in fact it was a curve to the right; and,

WHEREAS, this sign caused N. P. O'Neal to turn the wrong way, as indicated by the sign, and strike another automobile, which caused him to suffer damage in the sum of Five Hundred and Sixty-five ($565.00) Dollars; and,

WHEREAS, said injury was the direct and proximate result of negligence of an employee of the Highway Department, the accident is declared to be the direct result of the negligence of the Arkansas State Highway Department.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ENACTED BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF ARKANSAS:

SECTION 1. That the State of Arkansas acknowledges liability for damages in the sum of Five Hundred and Sixty-five ($565.00) Dollars due N. P. O'Neal by reason of the above set of facts. That there is hereby appropriated out of the General Fund the sum of Five Hundred and Sixty-five ($565.00) Dollars which is to be paid to N. P. O'Neal as compensation for the damages as set forth in the first part of this Act; and the Auditor of this State is hereby directed to issue a warrant for Five Hundred and Sixty-five ($565.00) Dollars to N. P. O'Neal, payable out of the General Fund; and the Treasurer is hereby directed to pay the same.

SECTION 2. Upon presentation of the claim for the sum appropriated in this Act, the Auditor of State shall issue his warrant for same and deliver said warrant to the said N. P. O'Neal.

SECTION 3. As a result of the injuries mentioned in this Act, said N. P. O'Neal has been placed in financial distress and such distress will continue until amends are made and he is compensated therefor. An emergency is, therefore, declared to exist and this Act being necessary for the public peace, health and safety it shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

In plain English, what happened on the 23rd of August, 1935, was this:

Mr. O'Neal straightened out a curve.

The pretense that an O'Neal motor accident has anything to do with this claim for $565 of the taxpayers' money is absurd—for with his own long list of accidents Mr. O'Neal is in no position to charge the state government with negligence, and is certainly not going to collect through the legislature on something for which a private citizen is forbidden to sue the state.

That motor accident isn't a claim. It's a subterfuge.—W.

Physician's Alleged Slayer Spirited Away to Unrevealed Prison

WILLOW SPRINGS, Mo.—(P)—The bullet-pierced body of Dr. J. C. B. Davis, 65, country doctor who was kidnaped a week ago, was found in an Ozark thicket by officers early Wednesday.

A Department of Justice agent said a 20-year-old youth had confessed to the slaying.

Earl J. Connelly, of the Federal Bureau of Investigation ("G" men), said the youth, identified as Robert Kenyon, of Grinnett, Mo., grilled since Tuesday in the $5,000 ransom abduction, led officers to the body near here.

Connelly said Kenyon was taken to another prison to avoid possible mob violence.

Court's Order to Evacuate Delayed

General Motors Gets Favorable Decision, But Strikers Hold Plant

FLINT, Mich.—(P)—A delay in the voluntary or forcible evacuation of two striker-held General Motors plants here beyond the deadline set by a court injunction appeared insured Wednesday following a statement by Circuit Judge Paul Gaddala that the order need not be enforced promptly at 2 p. m.

Strikers Ordered Out

FLINT, Mich.—Circuit Judge Paul V. Gaddala ordered Tuesday that sit-down strikers in two General Motors plants in Flint vacate in 24 hours and prohibited them from picketing.

Sheriff Thomas W. Wolcott appeared in plants No. 1 and 2 Tuesday night and read the order. The strikers listened to him quietly and there was no demonstration when he had finished.

Home Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, said the union undoubtedly would appeal. Asked if the union would order its members out of the plants, he said:

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—Looks like the best way for Russians to live a long time is for them to keep their mouths shut about the way the government is run, and not monkey with Japan too much. Seems their new constitution is working fine for those who wrote it. ### Senate Cuts Age for School to 18

House Votes to Pay Mrs. Monroe Her Late Husband's $1,000 Salary

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—In the face of bitter eastern Arkansas opposition the senate Wednesday passed Senator Milburn's bill to reduce the maximum age of school pupils in the state enumeration from 21 to 18.

The vote was 19 to 13. The emergency clause failed by five votes.

The senate adopted 25 to 3 Representative Coffelt's resolution for submission of a constitutional amendment to abolish the poll tax as a voting requisite. The house had previously passed it 92 to 6.

Protracted debate broke out in the house over an administrative measure designed to make more efficient assessment and equalization of real and personal property taxes through the creation of a tax supervision department.

The house voted to pay the $1,000 salary of the late Representative Luke F. Monroe of Hempstead county to his widow, who lives at Washington, Ark. The $1,000 represents the salary he would have received had he served.

Council to Require Further Study on Opening of Street

New Committee Named to Investigate Water-Disposal on Walnut

INSANITATION IS HIT

Health Report Criticizes Junkyard, and the Dumping of Garbage

The city council Tuesday night ordered a further study of the improvement proposal on South Walnut to Sixteenth street after Foy H. Hammons, County Judge Frank Rider and A. C. Erwin appeared before the group and spoke in behalf of the project.

A committee headed by Mayor Albert Graves and composed of E. P. Young, C. E. Cassidy and L. A. Keith, was authorized to consult an engineer for advice as to the disposal of surplus water in connection with the project and to study further costs.

Mr. Erwin told the council that the city's share of the project would cost approximately $2,800 in cash.

Mr. Hammons pointed out that the right-of-way from Ninth to Sixteenth street had been obtained by property owners, and that opening up of the street would relieve traffic conditions on South Main, affording a street to the high school building.

County Judge Rider spoke in favor of the project.

Gets WPA Approval

The WPA last month announced that a project calling for $14,515 in federal money had been approved for South Walnut street. The project called for grading and surfacing with gravel and the laying of concrete pipe and necessary side drainage from Third to Sixteenth street.

Before the project can be started the City of Hope—or property owners—must pledge its share.

The City Board of Health condemned the F. A. Lewis junk yard on East Second street in a report filed with the council Tuesday night. The report, pointing out that various articles caught water and would breed mosquitoes. The report said that bones piled in the junkyard were a source of infection.

The report also said that a general clean-up campaign would be launched throughout the city early in the spring.

The health board also reported that members had inspected the condition of barns on South Walnut and South Shover streets—and that conditions there had improved. The board suggested that the Chief of Police keep an eye on the conditions of the barns.

Protest Garbage Dumping

The dumping of garbage on East Division street from South Walnut two blocks east was reported to the council. The garbage was ordered removed. The dumping of fish-heads and other refuse behind business houses in Hope came up for discussion.

Ask 112 Millions for Flood Control at Once

WASHINGTON.—(P)—The National Resources Committee recommended Wednesday the expenditure of approximately 112 million dollars for "the immediate investigation or construction" of flood control projects in the lower Mississippi valley. The committee said in its report, submitted to congress by President Roosevelt, that the security of the lower Mississippi valley from ravaging floods "appears now to be reasonably assured" with construction of projects already authorized by congress, but for some of which no appropriations have been made.

D. B. Thompson made public Wednesday the following telegram from William M. Baxter, Jr., of the St. Louis Red Cross office:

"Congratulations and sincere appreciation for the splendid achievement of the Hempstead County Red Cross chapter in behalf of flood-relief funds.

"Needs continue to grow. Red Cross is now caring for nearly million flood refugees from 175 counties in 11 states along the Ohio and Mississippi valleys. We are operating 113 field hospitals and 317 concentration camps. Approximately 380 trained disaster relief workers in field. Also 1,100 Red Cross nurses who are combating influenza, pneumonia and curbing epidemics.

"The Red Cross is furnishing immediate emergency relief for refugees including food, shelter, clothing, bedding, nursing and medical care. This must continue many weeks until water has receded from entire district and people can return to their homes.

"There is a possibility that additional towns must be evacuated and the number of refugees will grow.

"I hope that citizens of Hempstead county will continue to respond to the fullest extent of their generosity."

Slight Rise After 15-Hour Standstill But Crest Is Near

Despite New High Mark of 59.6, Valley Feels Much Encouraged

ON FLOOD CONTROL

National Resources Committee Report Sent to Congress by F. D.

By the Associated Press

Flood-besieged Cairo, at the crisis of its historic battle against the river, stood on grim watch for the crest Wednesday.

The muddy Ohio was rising again, after a 15-hour standstill, as though gathering strength for a final assault before spilling its crest into the Mississippi.

The big stream brimmed to a new record-breaking height against Cairo's 60-foot seawall, the gauge showing 59.6 feet.

Meanwhile, optimistic predictions that the worst was over cheered river communities down the 1,000-mile stretch below Cairo, in the lower Mississippi valley.

For Flood Control

WASHINGTON.—(P)—President Roosevelt submitted to congress Wednesday a report of the National Resources Committee recommending drainage projects for the upper section of the Arkansas river and storage of flood waters along the main stream and principal tributaries to reduce frequency of floods in bottomland areas.

The committee's plan, based on a long-range study, shuts out navigation possibilities, declaring that the sandy, shifting channel of the Arkansas prevents carrying out projects that would provide transportation except at a cost "far greater than other means of transportation."

Along the Cuchacha river the committee recommended for deferred construction a 13-million-dollar dam for water power and flood control at Hot Springs.

Those are hogs—live, grunting, squealing—and Tom Bevington, Chardon, O., hog caller, doing their stuff unabashed in the foreground, but overalls and calico to the contrary, it's a bunch of city slickers from Park Avenue and suburbs who delight in the porcine round up at Elsa Maxwell's Barnyard Frolic in New York.

Nearly everyone of any consequence who had managed to stay away from the popular winter resorts turned out to enjoy Miss Maxwell's most lavish attempt at hostessing. Under the hay-covered hat, for instance, there's film-droid's Frederic March lighting up from the candle held by white overalls Mrs. Ottavia Prochet.

What a cow the one that Elsa Maxwell (sure it's she, whiskers and all) "milks" turned out to be! You can tell it isn't real, because with a real one she'd be inviting a kick in the stomach. What you can't tell is that the cow gives, not milk, but champagne! Just one of the little stunts that makes her society's favorite party organizer.

Along toward morning there were more "Hick" than hicks in evidence. Though it's late John Hemmingsway and beautiful Mrs. William Paley very obviously enjoy every minute. But over Hemmingsway's shoulder is another slant on the revelry—the waiter seems tired of it. He's wishing every one would go home and hit the hay.

Many Infectious Diseases Believed Due to Invisible Substances

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
 Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Most of the common infectious diseases are caused by germs which get into the body and then begin their action. The period that elapses between the time when the germ first enters and when the person begins to show disease symptoms is known as the incubation period.

This time varies with different diseases. In meningitis, it is from two to four days; in encephalitis, from one-half to three days; in measles, from 10 days to two weeks; in German measles, from five to 21 days; in scarlet fever, from several hours to a week; in smallpox, from 10 days to two weeks; in typhoid fever, from six to 25 days; and, in chickenpox, from four to 16 days.

Few people really know what germs look like or how they invade the human body. Germs are so small that it takes 300,000,000,000 to weigh a pound. They multiply rapidly under favorable conditions.

On germ can produce two new ones in 20 minutes. If a germ produces two new ones every hour, it would have at the end of a day millions of descendants.

We recognize disease germs by their presence at the time of disease and their absence when the disease is not present. In contrast, we recognize vitamins by the disease that appears when the vitamins are absent.

Germs are of many shapes and sizes; some are round, some rod-shaped, some spiral. Some have capsules made of wax or fat, and others have tails like fins. Germs are not a theory, because they can be seen under the microscope. In tubes, they can be seen to multiply so rapidly that a mass of them will appear in the tube where, the day before, nothing was visible.

When germs are injected into animals, they cause changes in the tissue and are found to be widespread throughout the animal's body, whereas only a small number had been placed under the creature's skin or into its blood vessel with the first injection.

Changes that take place are specific for each kind of germ. Typhoid germs are found in the intestines and cause ulcers in the intestines. In meningitis, the germs get into the coverings of the spinal cord and brain. When the spinal fluid is examined, germs can be found in it.

The germ can be grown artificially outside of the human body. If it is injected into an animal, it will produce symptoms like those in a human being, proving definitely that the germ is related to that disease.

Even when the germ cannot be seen under the most powerful microscope, we sometimes know that it, or a substance capable of producing the disease, is present, because an injection of the blood, or a transmission of some infected material from a person having a disease into the tissue of an animal will reproduce the condition.

Such invisible substances, many of them so small that they will pass through even the smallest of clay filters, are known as filtrable viruses. It is our belief that many of the infectious diseases for which the exact cause has not been determined are due to such substances.

Your Children

Playing With Fire?

Mrs. Smith, on her way to the grocery, hears the fire siren. The big trucks roar past, but before her heart has missed several beats. Thank goodness they have passed her corner. But during the short interval of uncertainty, a dozen things have had time to crystallize on the sensitive plate of memory.

Baby is asleep on the second floor. Hilda is ironing in the laundry with all the doors closed. Little demons of conscience continue to torment her, long after the first panic has passed.

She hurries on her errand, resolved that as soon as she gets home several things are going to be attended to at once. Right away, before another day passes.

Menace in the Attic
 One is the loose brick in the attic chimney. A year ago, the men who repaired the roof told her husband that the mortar in the two old chimneys had fallen away, and that there were places where the flue went through the attic you could put a finger in. "Someday a spark from the furnace is going to work through. And it may be when you're away or asleep."

John had said every day since that he simply must get the chimney fixed. And it wasn't done yet.

Then, there was always doubt about the hearth in the living room, where she and John had decided that logs would look more homey than the stove arrangement already there when they bought the place and moved in. A hearth has to be well constructed and reinforced, if fire is to burn on it. Fire lifted above flooring in baskets or stoves, is a little different problem from fire burning right on a flimsy built hearth. Before risking it, Mrs. Smith and John both knew that experts should have been consulted. Every day John had said, "I really must send Peterson over to see if there is any wood under those tiles."

But Peterson hadn't heard about it yet.

The Loose Gas Connection
 In the laundry, there had been no gas connection for the hot-plate used for the clothes boiler. John had tapped a pipe overhead, and put on a rubber hose connection. Mrs. Smith had warned the new Hilda about it over and over, but half the time it wasn't turned off at the ceiling. If that hose ever slipped—

Well, Mrs. Smith would stop at the plumber's right now and leave word. And not only that, but the water heater had taken notions recently, and blown out for no reason at all.

At the store she called Hilda. But Hilda couldn't hear the telephone. Another item to be corrected at once.

Not another day would pass, Mrs. Smith resolved, until every fire hazard in her house was removed. And this is why Mrs. Smith gets a column to herself. She is too good to be true.

HOLLYWOOD

By Paul Harrison

"Was My Face Red?" Is Common Hollywood Plait

HOLLYWOOD.—Embarrassing moments are mild catastrophes in the lives of movie stars. They don't like to be laughed at unless they're recognized comedians. But there isn't much they can do—Hollywood is a goldfish bowl, and a faux pas seldom goes unnoticed.

Still burning from recent embarrassing moments are Phil Regan, the romantic singer, and Carol Hughes, young actress who claimed fan attention as Olwin's wife in the "Three Men on a Horse" picture.

Regan was considered one of movietown's most eligible bachelors until it was revealed that he has been married for 12 years and is the father of four children. It gave his fans quite a jolt, and it was an awkward situation for himself.

Miss Hughes was the victim of a similar exposure. For six months Hollywood thought her an unmarried, 19-year-old ingenue. And then it became known that she, also, is married and that she is the mother of a 6-year-old daughter. It was very disconcerting.

John Crawford landed in a ticklish situation the first time she was called upon to take part in a radio broadcast. She suddenly developed an acute attack of microphobia. The words just wouldn't come out, her knees were shaking and, in the stuffy studio, she was afraid that she was going to faint. She had to be held up on each side before she could stammer a few words.

It was the same Miss Crawford, too, who kept Hollywood laughing for weeks. She autographed a photograph to the Maharaja of Indore and misspelled his name.

Ripping Fun
 Anything can happen during the filming of a picture and sometimes the occurrences are of a most embarrassing nature. Errol Flynn's experience, for example.

He was dressed in a very tight-fitting pair of silk trousers for a scene just the other day. The action called for him to bow. When he did, the trousers split, much to the amusement of onlookers.

Equally distressing was Greta Garbo's experience during the filming of "Camille." She was supposed to faint and fall back on a couch. But she misjudged the distance and landed on the floor.

Midsummer Nightmare
 Mickey Rooney, the little kid actor, still turns a light shade of red when you mention his role as Fack in "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

During a rehearsal he was springing from the branch of a tree, clad in nothing much but a pair of tights. He reached the ground, only to discover that he'd left the tights behind him. He made a bee-line for the dressing-room and didn't stick his head out for nearly an hour.

And then there was the time when burglars worked by Monte Evans' four watchdogs, held up by their dinner guests, thanked them and walked out while the dogs just stood there and wagged their tails.

Tyrone Powell will never forget the first time he tried to ice skate. The attempt was made at the suggestion of his girl friend, Sonja Henie, who is a world skating champion. Mr. Powell nearly cracked the ice with repeated falls and Miss Henie's snickers didn't help him.

A Horse On Gable
 Clark Gable's most embarrassing moment occurred early in his film career. He had told the Pathe studio, which had hired him for a villain's role in a western, that he could ride a horse. But he didn't know a thing about riding; in fact, he was scared of horses.

Nevertheless, he needed the money, and took secret lessons from a friend, before the picture started. On his first day of work, he boarded the horse from the wrong side and wound up in the saddle facing the wrong way, much to the merriment of real cowboys on the scene. But the actors who probably have suffered the most embarrassing moments are Bing Crosby and Fred Astaire. They wear toupees to cover unkind, bald spots and the toupees have almost annoying habit of falling off every now and then.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

Thriller—But Not an Ordinary One.

It would be a shame if "So I Killed Her," by Leonard C. Mosley (Doubleday, Doran; $2), should be classified with the murder-mystery thrillers. To be sure, it is about a murder and it has mystery in it; but it is several cuts above the ordinary thriller, and it is essentially a tense, grim character study rather than a melodrama.

The book has to do with an insufferably conceited novelist who, taking a wife, becomes obsessed with the notion that she still is in love with an out-of-the-chow young press agent, with whom, before her marriage, she had been having an affair.

As a matter of fact, she is not. Indeed, the poor girl is so ill-advised as to be deeply and truly in love with her novelist husband. But he persists in his delusion, and decides at last that it is only fair for him to kill her and put the blame on her former paramour.

He does this with a great deal of skill. The wife dies, and the discarded love rises arrested for her murder.

The novelist—who, in the story progresses, turns into one of the most odious characters in modern fiction—railroads his rival to the electric chair and gloats over his approaching execution.

Now there is a final twist to this tale which leaves the schemer feeling like an invalid who has fallen down three flights of stairs.

I shan't reveal it here, except to say that it brings a swift, admirably told story to a surprising and wholly satisfactory conclusion.

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of bile into your bowels daily. If it is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sick and the world looks puny. Laxatives are only make-shifts. A bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. Calomel is the only medicine that takes those road, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Stubbly refuse anything else.

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT

CRIME FILE ON BOLITHO BLANE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BOLITHO BLANE, British financier, disappears from yacht owned by his principal competitor, CARLTON ROCKS, on Miami. A note found in Blane's cabin addressed to his secretary NICHOLAS STODART, indicates suicide since he faced bankruptcy. A memo written by Stodart shows Blane's company stock, ARGUN STOD, closing at a new low that day.

Other passengers aboard the yacht GOLDEN GULL are MISS FERRI ROCKS, CARLTON's daughter; LADY WELTER; REYNOLD JACOBSEN, MISS JACOBSEN's daughter and son-in-law; the BISHOP OF BUDE; COLONEL LEIGH PENNODINI, and INOSUKE HAYASHI. Detective Officer KETTERING, boarding yacht at Miami, finds strange marks on Blane's cabin carpet and blood on curtain. Upon examination, Rocksavage admits inviting Blane aboard to effect amalgamation of their companies. Mr. and Mrs. Jocelyn reveal Lady Welter is heavily interested in Rocksavage stocks.

NOW GO ON WITH THIS STORY CHAPTER VII
 DETECTIVE OFFICER NEAME'S SHORTHAND NOTES OF DETECTIVE OFFICER KETTERING'S EXAMINATION OF LADY WELTER.

K.: Good morning, Lady Welter. Take a chair, please.
 L.W.: Thank you, I prefer to stand.

K.: Just as you wish, lady.
 L.W.: What is it you wish to see me about?

K.: Isn't that rather obvious? You know that I'm the officer in charge of the investigation of Mr. Bolitho Blane's death.

L.W.: And what has that to do with me?

K.: Nothing—nothing, as far as I know, Lady Welter, but this is just a matter of routine and you won't mind answering a few questions, I'm sure.

L.W.: That all depends on the questions, young man.
 K.: Well, they're quite simple. It's just a matter of routine checking up, and I'd like you to tell me just what your movements were between the time of the yacht sailing from Miami and your going in to dinner last night.

L.W.: Are you accusing me...
 K.: Now, now, have a heart, please. I'm not accusing anyone of anything, but it's my duty to get all these details which may seem stupid to you. Where were you when the ship sailed?

 L.W.: I was on deck talking to the Bishop of Bude.
 K.: You saw the tender come off, then?
 L.W.: I did and the bishop said to me, "That's Mr. Bolitho Blane," as the two men came up the gangway in to the middle of the ship.

K.: The bishop knew Blane by sight, then?
 L.W.: I don't know. I suppose so.
 K.: Right, what happened after that?
 L.W.: The bishop and I went down to our cabins. When I came up to the lounge I found Mr. Rocksavage with Mr. Blane's secretary and the bishop. The secretary was introduced to me and we sat there until Mr. Rocksavage left.

K.: What time was that?
 L.W.: I really haven't the faintest idea. What has all this to do with—

K.: Patience, please. What happened after Mr. Rocksavage left the lounge?
 L.W.: If you must know, the Japanese gentleman came in, and then my daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jocelyn. After the dinner bugle sounded Mr. Rocksavage came in, too, but he went downstairs almost at once and some message came up that Mr. Blane was ill, so that we were to go in to dinner without waiting any longer.

K.: Am I right in believing that you hold a large block of shares in the Rocksavage companies?

L.W.: That, young man, is nothing whatsoever to do with you.

K.: Did you come on this trip for pleasure?
 L.W.: For my own reasons. This discussion is quite pointless.

K.: All right, all right. I won't trouble you any more now, Lady Welter, but maybe we'll have to have one of these jolly little discussions together again, a little later on.

DETECTIVE OFFICER NEAME'S SHORTHAND NOTES OF DETECTIVE OFFICER KETTERING'S EXAMINATION OF THE VERY REV. DR. STAPLETON THOMAS, D. D., THE LORD BISHOP OF BUDE.

K.: Good morning Bishop.
 B.: Good morning—good morning. This is a very distressing affair—very distressing.

K.: It certainly is, and I am sure you will forgive me bothering you, but I have got to ask you just a few questions, so that I can check up on events last night. Now, perhaps you'll tell me what you were doing between the time of the ship sailing and going in to dinner last night.
 B.: I was standing by the after-rail on the starboard side of the ship, with Lady Welter, when we left Miami.

K.: You saw Blane and his secretary come aboard, then?

February 3rd marks the anniversary of the passing of Woodrow Wilson, the 28th president of the United States, and I know of no more beautiful tribute than that paid to him by Dr. E. E. Violette who will be remembered by many for his inspiring sermons and splendid lectures he delivered in our city some ten years ago.

Ode To Woodrow Wilson

Like a great star your light shall shine on high,
Out of a laden moon-forsaken night
That hangs o'er earth forever now that you are dead:
Yet in your golden message of man's might, I read
A new and dazzling prophecy.
I glimpsed the sun-crowned peaks of Ideality,
I saw the dumb world sleeping stolidly,
Waiting your word to work and fight,
For liberty, for peace and right.
So now I know the gods yet walk
with men,
Sending in you across those troubled
years.
Another Galahad with strength of ten;
Another Lincoln, king among his pens.
You have "gone West"—
But lo, yon Eastern sky reflects your light
Against the coming night of other
years—
Your work can never die!

Corn Easily Bred for Special Uses

Could Double Alcohol Output If Gasoline Shortage Should Appear

By PAUL D. SHOEMAKER
Associated Press Farm Editor
CHICAGO—Unexpected yields of corn from hybrid seed under 1936's adverse conditions have caused the demand for such seed to exceed the supply. Commercial producers here report that farmers are clamoring for suitable hybrids to plant this spring.

Last year many mid-western fields planted with hybrid seed, produced from controlled-pollinated stock, yielded 50 or more bushels to the acre while nearby fields seeded with open-pollinated varieties were a nearly complete loss.

Just as better livestock has been produced by intelligent breeding corn is being developed now in the search for "perfect seed."

How It Is Done

The first step in producing a hybrid is to control the breeding of the corn plant, which has both male and female characteristics. This is known as inbreeding. This process of self-pollination is accomplished by placing a paper bag over a former ear, before the silks appear, to prevent wind-blown pollen from reaching it. The tassels of the same plant it covered with another bag into which the pollen falls. When the silks appear, the bag over the ear is removed and the bag containing the pollen is placed over the ear.

This inbreeding, using corn produced the previous year as seed, may be carried on up to seven years in the process of developing a pure strain. It is painstaking labor and frequently inbreeds showing poor traits are discarded after a few years.

The purpose is to bring out good characteristics, strong roots, good ears, sturdy stalks, good foliage, disease resistance, uniform maturity, drought and cold resistance, tolerance to injury by bugs and insects and capacity to utilize soil minerals and moisture efficiently. After years of inbreeding ears sometimes become small, almost like nibbings, but inherent qualities remain.

A hybrid is produced by crossing two or more unrelated inbred strains, which have developed certain outstanding individual characteristics. On large scale operations, hybrid seed is produced by planting the pure inbred strains in rows of varying number, one row of one strain to two, three, or four rows of another. Tassels are removed from rows determined as the female parents before any pollen is shed. Rows where tassels are permitted to grow become the male parents and pollinize the other rows. Such fields are isolated from other corn to prevent windblown pollen from reaching them. Only corn produced by the female plant is used for hybrid seed.

A single-cross hybrid comes from two inbred strains, a three-way cross involves three strains and the double-cross, four strains. Corn produced from hybrid seed does not make good seed for the next year's planting. Hybrid seed sells for $3 to $10 a bushel. A bushel will plant from seven to eight acres.

'Corn Of Tomorrow'
Meryle Morgan of Galva, Ill., one of the first commercial producers of hybrids, along with the Wallace of Iowa, calls hybrids "the corn of tomorrow."

"In the next year or two I think you will find that we will have some hybrids that will put our best ones of today completely in the background," Morgan says. "We are developing some stock now that we believe will be far better."

"You know any kind of corn can be produced if you have the patience. Commercial development of hybrid corn is so recent that only the surface has been scratched."

He sees a great opportunity ahead for farmers producing corn for industrial purposes. "A hybrid could easily be produced in a few years that would yield twice or three times as much alcohol as the corn grown at the present time," Morgan declared. "Should our supply of gasoline show signs of becoming exhausted, hybrid corn growers could jump into the breach and furnish our vehicles with power fuel."

EAT AT THE THEATERS

At the Saenger
How to get a young rural inventor's mind off his invention—and on to romance—is the problem of Mae West in her new starring vehicle, "Go West Young Man," which begins on Thursday night at the Saenger theater.

Randolph Scott is the young man more interested in the potential fame and fortune that his invention may bring, but when Mae West displays some of those famous Western wiles—well, the most avid scientist might be expected to forget his work.

This situation takes place on a typical Pennsylvania farm and is the first time the glamorous actress appears in a modern outdoor setting. She is about to fall hard for Scott, something she is specially prohibited from doing by the terms of her contract, when Warren William, her press agent, saves the day by "crabbing" the romance, only to find himself hopelessly wound up in it himself.

An exceptional supporting cast assists Mae West in the general hilarity of "Go West Young Man." Included in it are Lyle Talbot, Alice Brady, Isabel Jewell, Elizabeth Patterson, Margaret Perry and a number of other outstanding players.

Break Causes No Alarm
The break caused little concern, since waters from previous breaks, widening to 500 and 1,000-feet respectively, was flowing straight across the two-mile neck and reentering the Mississippi at mile 80, and above. Backwater prevented the development of a strong current and there was no indication a new channel was being created. The escaping water has not gone toward or raised the water level at Tiptonville, but that town was nearly surrounded by overflow water from the banks opposite it.

Five additional CCC companies were moved into the fight to strengthen the dike at Cates Landing where the break might threaten Reelfoot lake.

Louis Unable to Catch Bob Pastor

Harry Grayson Says Pastor Can Stay Limit With Any Heavyweight

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Writer

NEW YORK—His paper chase with Bob Pastor once more demonstrated that Joe Louis prefers his targets propped up.

There was just a faint suspicion of that following Louis' knockout at the good right hand of Max Schmeling. The German confuted the notion with a simple and slight shuffle of his right and bending his body in that direction. That was tipoff enough as to how badly the so-called Brown Bomber would be bewildered by an opponent who set out to bob, grab, sidestep, and run his way through 10 rounds, which is exactly what Pastor did.

The difference between Schmeling and Pastor was that the Black Uhlan had sufficient faith in his ammunition and all-round ability to take a shot when an opportunity presented itself. Schmeling could hurt Louis with his right hand and knew it. Pastor realized that he couldn't dent Judge Landis' old felt hat with either fist.

The Louis-Pastor hunt also again illustrated that every student of boxing is well aware of. Anybody with a fair knowledge of boxing and a reasonable amount of speed can stick 10 rounds with a killing puncher when that is the only purpose.

Would Have Stayed With Any Heavyweight

Pursuing his tactics of the other night, Pastor would have gone the limit with any heavyweight, including Jack Dempsey.

I recall the late Harry Greb dropping into the Van Gelton Stadium, New York, for a workout with Dempsey before the Man Mauler repaired to Atlantic City to train for the first of the million-dollar gates with Georges Carpentier in 1921. Cuffing, grabbing, and running, Greb made Dempsey look so bad that he never was permitted to work with him again.

Like a number of other heavyweights who moved quite a piece down the public highway, Louis is strictly a counter puncher.

Gene Tunney was rather helpless when the other fellow failed to lug the trouble to him. The Marlin Marine was chucked from the ring a time or two when paired with unwilling workmen.

Jack Johnson would make a lot of fancy moves and funny faces, but bided his time until he had a chance to counter.

Pastor's strategy was clever only in this sense that it enabled him to go the distance. It was made all the more effective by the element of surprise. The former New York University back had charged in all previous contests. He appeared to be made to order for Louis.

Johnston Forgot All About His Customers

Pastor's plan of battle accounts for his having done so little boxing in preparation for Louis. The Washington Heights boxer spent most of his training time hoofing it around the reservoir in Central Park. He had reason to be more interested in his legs and wind than in boxing.

There was considerable venom behind Pastor's sprinting. Faster, as he should be called after his showing against Louis, undoubtedly acted on the instructions of Jimmy Johnston, the Garden promoter.

Johnston realized what would happen to Pastor if the young man took too many liberties. There is every evidence that Johnston knew that Pastor couldn't win, determined to remove as much luster from Louis as possible. Smokey Joe is in the hands of the opposition, you know.

Also in Pastor's camp were those two colored guards of other days, Jack Johnson and Ol' Har' Wills. For obvious reasons, Johnston hasn't been welcome in the Louis circle. Let Arthur doesn't exactly care to see his people forgetting all about the only negro world heavyweight champion, and I presume that Wills still likes to strut along in the reflected glory of having been a sizable Black Menace.

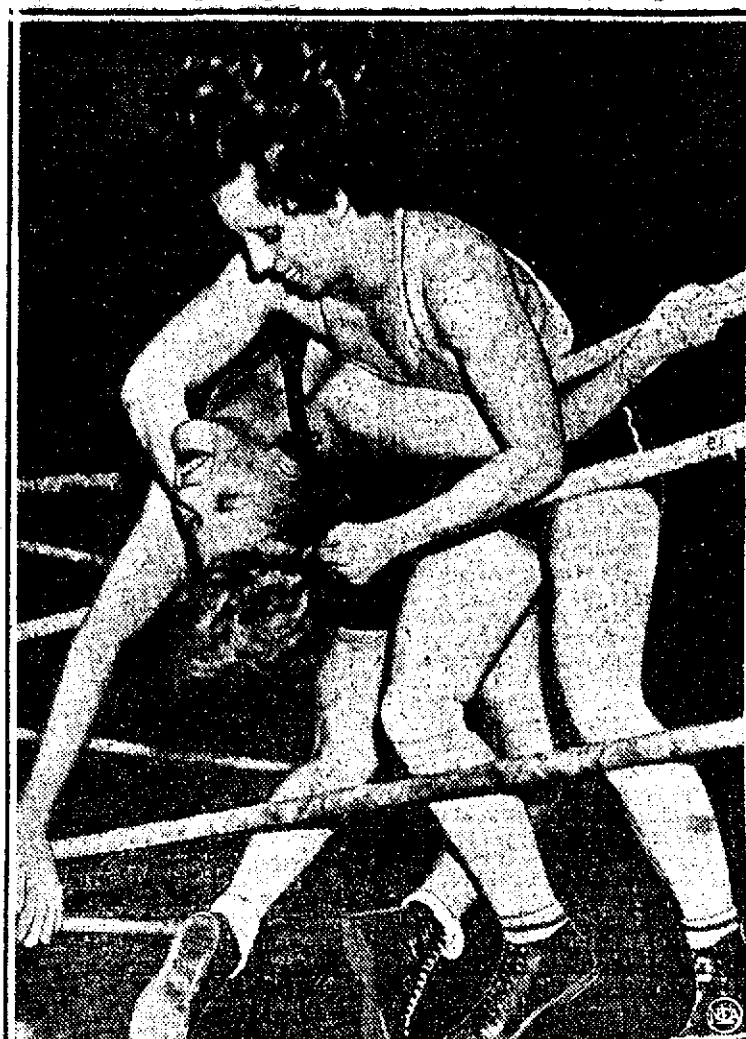

Trade Takes It on the Chin as Usual

The customers were the goats as usual. A good share of them paid as much as $15.00 each to be hoodwinked, Johnston sacrificing his own trade in giving his cluck heavyweight the dubious honor of going 10 rounds with Louis.

The unusual feature along this line was that 15,000 persons who paid $111,570.00 to see a foot race instead of a fight actually cheered the underdog all the way along the route. They didn't sense that they were being hoodwinked until they were turned out into the night air.

If any additional evidence was required, the Louis-Pastor fiasco furnished clinching proof that the pugilistic public will stand for anything.

Sweeping Into Championship

Mildred Burke of Kansas City, Mo., took opportunity by the forelock as it were to wrest the world's feminine wrestling championship from Clara Mortenson of Glendale, Calif., in a match at Chattanooga, Tenn. That's Clara who is being parted from her title, hair by hair.

The Man Who Hit 'Em a Mile

ARCADIA, Calif.—(NEA)—Jack Leivelt, baseball manager and scout, paused on his way to the cashier's window and took a long gander at an airplane cruising a half-mile or so above the Santa Anita racetrack. He lowered his gaze and chuckled.

The plane reminded him, he said, of the time Cotton Terney was in a batting slump in the American Association. All he did was pop to the catcher and bounce high ones-off the grandstand roof.

"We were in Milwaukee and Cot was up," mused Leivelt. "He was all set to take his cut when a plane flew over the park and started circling about 1000 feet high. I should say. Cot stepped out of the box and looked at the plane. The ump let him look for a few seconds and then said: 'Batter up. Let's go.' Cot did not move. The ump told him to get in there and get it over with.

"Not me," said Cot, shaking his head. "The way I am blooming they I am a cinch to hit that plane and maybe kill the pilot."

"Sure enough, when Cot did go back to work he hit under a pitch and sent the ball so high it would have busted the pilot's meat hand if the pilot had leaned out. The catcher took it up against the screen for the third out."

Log Rolls Into Flamingo

Log, shown with Charley Kurtsinger up, was not named for the $20,000 added Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah Park, Feb. 27, but Elmer Dale Shaffer may make the daughter of Bull Dog a supplementary entry as the result of the brown filly's length victory over a classy field of 11 other 3-year-olds in the sixth and $3500 added Hialeah Stakes. Log ran six furlongs in the fast time of 1:10 4-5 to account for her fourth consecutive victory and preserve her unbeaten record for the Florida season.

Tennis Team Led by Tyrus Cobb, Jr.

Baseball Immaterial to Him, He Plans to Be a Doctor

By BILL BORING
ATHENS, Ga.—(AP)—Tyrus Cobb, Jr., a husky red-head, is gaining tennis importance for a name immortal in baseball.

The young and heavier edition of the "Georgia Peach" is a handler of athletes. But tennis—not baseball—players are his charges.

He is the University of Georgia's new court coach.

Bearing a striking resemblance to his famous father and proud of the competitive heart and love of sports he inherited, young Ty, however, emphasizes his desire to "pay for his own ticket" into the sports show.

Georgia elected him tennis coach after he had gained knowledge of the game at Yale and in tournament play.

To Be Doctor

He captained the Yale freshman courtmen and later won a varsity berth. His tourney achievements include the Connecticut State indoor, the Augusta (Ga.) city singles and a number of minor meet titles.

A junior at Georgia, he is taking a pre-medical course.

"After baseball, dad would have chosen medicine as a profession," he declares.

Cobb, besides coaching tennis, is assistant swimming instructor at Georgia. Besides tennis and swimming, he likes football, basketball, hunting and fishing.

Silent About His Team

About baseball:

"I haven't the slightest interest in it."

He has his own ideas for whipping athletes into shape:

"Drill them on points of weakness. Keep them keyed up."

He says a competitive heart—a burning urge to win—is the "one thing necessary" in sports.

Cobb, like most coaches, refuses to discuss his team's prospects.

The youngster weighs 185, about 20 pounds more than his father weighed in his heyday.

His home is Augusta, Ga. He is 26.

Court's Order To

"We are law-abiding. We will not fight the government."

Lewis on Way

John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization directing the widespread automobile strikes which have cut General Motors production almost to the vanishing point, left Washington for Detroit Tuesday. He was scheduled to address mass meetings in Michigan automotive centers including Pontiac, Lansing and Flint.

U. A. W. A. headquarters in Detroit said Lewis, whose C. I. O. group is at odds with the American Federation of Labor, was coming to confer on plans to "intensify the strike."

At Detroit Tuesday William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors, said the company would open negotiations with the United Automobile Workers of America as soon as strike-held plants are vacated.

"General Motors welcomes the decision which upholds our position that the forcible occupation of our plants by the union is illegal," Knudsen said.

"We expect that the union will now demonstrate that it is a responsible organization, willing to abide by the law and respect the rights of others by peacefully accepting the decision of the court."

"As soon as the plants have been vacated and restored to our possession we will commence negotiations with the union on the issues which it raised with us in its letter of January 4."

Court Depletes

Justifying his order Tuesday, Judge Gadola cited the case of Lane vs. Au Sable Electric Co., which was referred to in court Monday by counsel for General Motors. The case, a Michigan litigation, involved the retention of a steeling electrical worker of a house which the company had given him to live in. Declaring the only issue involved was "possession of property," the judge cited legal precedents, including Supreme Court rulings upholding Michigan's anti-picketing statute.

The court's ruling was contained in a 5,000-word opinion. The gist of Judge Gadola's ruling was contained in the following paragraph:

"It is deplorable that in this country, and with the respect for law and order in our institutions that prevail, that it should become necessary to have conditions as they are. Courts cannot set up any processes or tribunals to adjust differences between an employer and an employee. That is a matter for Congress or of the various state legislatures."

Said Planning to Stay

Union headquarters in Flint Tuesday night announced the strikers in plant No. 2 had telegraphed Governor Frank Murphy: "We have decided to stay in the plant. We have no delusions about the sacrifices which this decision will entail. We fully expect that if a violent effort is made to oust us many of us will be killed."

John Brophy, director of the Committee for Industrial Organization, said he was assured by Governor Murphy that "under no circumstances will the military be used to erect or assist in the erection of sit-in employees of General Motors at Flint by force or violence."

Winfield Whipple, Great Jumper, Dies

Arkadelphia Boy Succumbs Following Illness of More Than Year

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. — Winfield Whipple, 21, a son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Whipple, died at his home here at 6:45 Tuesday night, following a long illness. Complications arising following the amputation of his left leg more than a year ago caused his death.

Winfield was a brilliant athlete at Arkadelphia High School and in his senior year, 1932, broke the state high school broad jump record with a distance of 24 feet. He was only 18 at the time. In a former meet he had jumped 24 feet and 10 inches. In the fall of 1933 he enrolled at Louisiana State University and in the spring of 1934 set a new Southern A. A. U. record at 24 feet and six inches.

Bernie Moore, then track coach, as well as his brilliant young pupil, had hopes of his going to the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin, but in 1935 he developed a lameness in his leg. Prolonged treatment brought no improvement and Winfield came home and was taken to Memphis where a physician found immediate amputation imperative. Sarcoma had developed.

He withstood the operation well and soon returned to Arkadelphia where he seemed recovering.

Moore, now head football coach at Louisiana State, visited Winfield last summer, bringing a beautiful bronze trophy commemorating his winning of the broad jump event in the 1934 Southern A. A. U. track meet.

Ill Luck Persists

Several months ago the disease spread to his lungs and involved his heart. He grew rapidly worse in recent weeks and collapsed Tuesday afternoon.

He was born September 10, 1915, in Crowley, La., and came to Arkadelphia as a baby in 1916. He was a member of the Presbyterian church.

Besides his parents, he is survived by three sisters, Miss Edyth Whipple of Little Rock; Miss Sue Whipple of Arkadelphia; and Miss Mae Whipple of Ancon, Canal Zone; and two brothers, Maxwell and Dempsey Whipple of Arkadelphia.

Coch Moore, and other Louisiana State men will attend the funeral, which will be held at the Presbyterian church here Thursday. The Rev. Herndon McClain, pastor, will conduct the services.

"Emergency" Play Is Told by Wisdom

It Helped Plowboys Win 60 Straight Basketball Games

STEPHENSVILLE, Texas.—(AP)—Coach W. J. Wisdom (that's a good name for a successful athletic coach), whose John Tarleton college cagers have set for their goal the boosting of more than 60 straight wins to 80 in a row, deduced largely upon the center on the basketball court.

He doesn't think he has a team unless he has a center whose head bobbles well above the 6-foot mark. If a tall man doesn't come out for center, Wisdom finds a tall man among the 500 men attending the college and brings him out.

Although Wisdom counts on fast forwards, long shooters and fast guards who can feed the ball to the forwards, he resorts to his "emergency" play in the pinches. The tall center gets under the goal and a guard or forward tosses the ball high. As it starts toward the backboard, the tall center leaps high and nudges it through the hoop with the tips of his fingers. The play was even against a 5-man defense.

The Tarleton winning streak, a record in collegiate play, is not considered much out of the ordinary here. In the 15 years Wisdom has coached basketball at Tarleton his teams have won 90 per cent of their games.

May. Bob Neyland, right, football coach of the University of Tennessee, has just let a right hand punch go in sparring with Joe Little, his center and a heavyweight ringster. In addition to being a star end and pitcher at West Point in 1914-5-6, Cadet Neyland was heavyweight boxing champion although he scaled only 175 pounds. The major can't resist assisting Coach Breezy Wynn train Volunteer gladiators.

Baseball Players Fined for Errors

Oklahoma City Team to Be Penalized for Mistakes

BEAUMONT, Tex.—(AP)—Fines will be slapped on the Oklahoma City Indians for errors among their daily baseball chores. But some Texas league managers believe the idea won't work.

Manager Jim Keesey of Oklahoma City plans to levy a small fine for failing to hit; a large fine for striking out in the pinch, or for failure to drive a man home from third; $1 fine for a fielding miscue; an assessment for a pitcher losing after being given a safe lead; a deduction for walks allowed by a pitcher and a fine for hitting into a double play.

Credits will be given for hitting in the pinch, making a sparkling play and strikeouts.

Manager Al Vincent of Beaumont says the idea is wrong.

"Consider the fellow who is hustling his head off but is in a slump. Are you going to stick a fine, however small, on a fellow like that? I'm not."

"Or suppose a man is on third and the batter lines out hard. Are you going to penalize the batter?"

Arkansas and S. M. U. to Meet at Ft. Smith

FORT SMITH, Ark.—(AP)—Southern Methodist University and University of Arkansas football teams will meet here October 23 for the first appearance of the Razorbacks in Fort Smith since 1924. University athletic officials and representatives of the Fort Smith Chamber of Commerce approved plans for the game Tuesday.

with red splashes on it, meant to represent blood, has marched to and fro—campaigning against dangerous spiked railings.

Gets Rubber Check for Austrian Job

The Place for American Coaches Is America, Says Harold Bruce

VIENNA.—(AP)—The place for American coaches, says Harold Anson Bruce, is America.

"Europeans have no mercy on the foreign coach," explains Bruce, mentor at Lafayette and Union colleges from 1909-1931, one-time vice president of the A.A.U., and tutor of Austrian Olympic candidates.

"They certainly do their best to get their money's worth. I have worked harder on this 18 months' assignment than I ever did during 22 years of American college coaching."

Collecting his salary has been one of Bruce's major trials—along with politics, his charges' ignorance of health laws, lack of material, and so on.

Nevertheless, his men set up 40 new Austrian records and won eight of nine international dual meets.

He finished his contract in October, but remained in Vienna two more months trying to collect, he says, on a "rubber check" that sports authorities gave him.

CCC Sub-Camp Set

the detachment of men is from the negro camp at Rosston, which is supervised by Dee Lybrand, Superintendent, and other white foremen and officers.

The sub-camp is on Highway 29, just north of the city limits of Bradley. Housing facilities for the 50 or 60 men include barracks, mess hall, and tool houses. The enrollees will work in the southern part of Lafayette and Columbia counties on the construction projects.

Mr. Davis, foreman of the new camp, has been foreman at Rosston for the past year. Prior to that time he was connected with the Hamburg camp.

Matty Bell Signs 6-Year Contract

May Be Professor of Physical Education When Contract Expires

DALLAS, Texas.—(AP)—Matty Bell, among the jobless after he was fired as Texas Aggie football coach in 1933 was firmly entrenched in the athletic saddle at Southern Methodist University Tuesday with what virtually was a lifetime job.

The former "praying colonel" of Centre College was assured of at least six more years as head football coach and a professorship of physical education from then on if he wanted it.

With still another year to go on his present contract, nothing had been said about a new one until a representative of the University of Iowa conferred with him last week about the Hawkeye coaching position. Bell conceded the Iowa set-up was interesting.

But it was not until Iowa officials invited him to Iowa City for a new conference that the executive committee of the Southern Methodist board of trustees got busy.

A new contract was drawn up. It called for an annual salary of $6,500—an increase of $1,500—for a five-year period beginning at the close of his present campaign. At the end of six years he would move automatically into the physical education department at a salary of $4,000 should both parties not agree to a new coaching contract. A professor may be removed for gross incompetence or immorality.

Bell signed. Then he telephoned Iowa athletic officials: "I couldn't desert SMU." Under the contract he cannot consider offers from other schools during the next six years.

Bell was a member of the unemployed when he came to Southern Methodist. After a successful tenure at Texas Christian he was selected to succeed Dana X. Bible at Texas A. and M. College when Bible went to Nebraska.

Although his Aggie teams usually finished near the top he failed to produce a champion. Disgruntled alumni began howling, resulting in a mid-season announcement in 1933 that his services were no longer wanted, despite his contract.

Ray Morrison, then ring master of the Southern Methodist aerial circus, grabbed Bell up as an assistant. A year later when Morrison went to Vanderbilt Bell took over the Mustang corral and in his first season developed the Southwest Conference's only Rose Bowl team.

After a so-so season in 1932 Bell looks forward to better prospects next fall. At least he won't be bothered by outside offers.

The Sportsman

By LARRY BAUER
Associated Press Writer

There are indications that the long suffering farmer is going to get something out of the hunting and fishing business besides an occasional drink of store whisky.

The day of "rugged individualism" in these sports is drawing to a close, and the man who produces the game crop is being urged to accept a place in the new scheme of things which will bring him more than broken fences and headaches.

Among signs of the times let it be noted that soon after its farm game management bulletin, the More Game Birds foundation suggested that hunters subsidize farmers to raise game and that nirpods pay for hunting privileges and game killed.

Game experts have pointed out that the sooner sportsmen work with farmers to increase wildlife, the more certain is the future of better days afield.

"The solution of the problem of wildlife conservation and restoration lies in the hands of the farmer," says Edwin B. Steen, instructor in game and fish at Purdue University.

The experts say that in states where both parties get together on a sensible, and not too expensive program to protect the farmer from trespassers and at the same time to increase the game supply, the result is improved shooting and a better understanding all around.

"Open game country and free public shooting grounds are almost things of the past in many states," says the Agriculture Bulletin, "and it is beyond the realm of present possibilities for state game commissions to purchase and maintain public shooting grounds sufficient to supply the demands of all sportsmen."

"Therefore, if sportsmen are to hunt small game in the future, it must be produced by farmers and other landowners, and the sportsmen will have to be reconciled to the fact that if game is to be produced for their recreation, the farmer who produces that game is entitled to a just remuneration for the product, for the use of the land and for his services."

Dwindling of natural resources and a continuous increase in the number of men and women who hunt and fish for recreation have redoubled conservation efforts and brought about the situation in which the farmer has so vital a part.

Baugh Perplexed Over His Business Future

FORT WORTH, Texas.—(AP)—Sam Adrian Baugh, Texas Christian University's perplexed grid star, was still trying Tuesday to decide on his future course.

Monday he held a final conversation with officials of Phoenix, Arizona. The result was his definite withdrawal from the high school coaching job there because he could get but a one-year contract.

Now it appears Baugh will take one of two courses: Play professional football or become assistant coach at TCU. He intends to confer with officials of the Washington, D. C., pro team concerning a contract. However, it is definite that Baugh would like to coach a year or so under Dutch Meyer, TCU mentor, to gain experience.

Salmon, heretofore prevented from migrating up the Aroostook river by a mighty dam at Aroostook Falls, Me., now are able to travel upstream and complete their spawning, through the medium of a series of steps, somewhat similar to the locks in a canal.

State Dispensary Set Up in Alabama

Kansas Now Is Only Remaining Bone-Dry State in America

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—(AP)—Breaking a 22-year-old reign of prohibition, repeal leaders in the Alabama legislature drove a state-store liquor control system bill through to passage Tuesday over the veto of Gov. Bibb Graves, automatically enacting it into law.

The action left Kansas the only "bone dry" state in the nation. Tennessee, Mississippi, Georgia and Oklahoma ban hard liquor but permit the sale of beer. The law will bring legal whiskey to Alabama about April 1 in all counties that vote for repeal in a special election March 10 regardless of the statewide result.

Counties voting against repeal will remain under the stringent prohibition laws enacted by a dry legislature in 1915 that banned everything except near beer.

Alabama's election system provides for official tabulation of the statewide vote 15 days after the election and the new repeal law will become effective in wet counties upon the proclamation of Governor Graves announcing the vote. Since a day or two will be needed to set up the state stores in wet counties, legal whiskey actually will begin to flow around April 1.

Doubles as Preacher

TULSA, Okla.—(AP)—Week days Lee Krupnick is a news photographer, on the job wherever a story is breaking. Sundays he is a layman preacher, traveling hundreds of miles to deliver his message to church congregations.

A Jewish convert to the Christian faith, Krupnick has spoken to thousands of persons of all denominations in Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri.

Krupnick accepts no money for his sermons. Because of his emotional appeal on the platform, he is known as the "weeping preacher."

Limbs and Nerves Are Transferred

Medical Science Finally Successful, But Only on Rats as Yet

By AURELIUS KINSEY
AP Feature Service Writer
CHICAGO, Ill.—A white rat with a fifth leg growing out between its ears runs across the table and Justin V. Schwind, 24, Loyola University medical student, smiles—the operation is a success.

Schwind picks up another rat, points to an extra leg growing out of its back and says, "Watch it move." It moves whenever he squeezes one of the rat's hind feet.

Schwind is transplanting legs from one rat to another in such a way that the bones, muscles, nerves and blood channels grow together and work.

Medical records show that legs have been transplanted in salamanders and dogs but never before, says this youth from Perryburg, Ohio, have scientists been able to regenerate nerve and muscle activity.

He hopes that some day missing or diseased legs, arms, lungs, livers, stomachs or other parts of the body may be replaced with healthy members.

First he binds the donor and recipient together. Then he severs half of the leg to be transplanted, unites exposed muscles, nerves and skin to where he wants them to grow and lets his work men. After several days, when the mending is complete, he cuts off the leg entirely and ties in the circulatory connections and other muscles and nerves.

Schwind says his success lies in the fact that between the first and second steps the part being transplanted is kept alive with the donor's blood. He is not certain if the blood courses through the two bodies but he thinks this to be the case.

Repair crews, rushed into January sleet storm area, found miles of telephone line flattened by ice.

This lineman is patching through an emergency telephone line to an isolated town.

TELEPHONE MEN STILL WORKING TO REPAIR ICE-WRECKED LINES

Telephone men, still at work repairing damage from the $1,500,000 sleet which swept from the Iowa border to the Gulf in January, can remember no worse ice storm.

Yet they found, as they set about replacing 20,000 poles and 18,000 miles of wire leveled by the blast, that this year's disaster actually did less damage than the smaller 1924 ice storm. The reasons:

First—Most telephone poles today are crooked yellow pine. They stand under ice that would snap poles used years ago.

Second—Constructed at heavy cost several years ago, an underground long distance cable through the heart of the storm belt "carried on." It formed a backbone of communication from which emergency lines could quickly be "patched through" to almost 100 isolated towns.

These things... improvements of the last 10 years... are a part of the Bell System's constant effort to make its lines proof against storm and disaster.

To those customers who were without service because of the storm, perhaps for several days, the company expresses its appreciation for their patience during a trying period.
